A Global Streaming Launch for 2025

Legacy Makers* will launch on multiple streaming platforms worldwide, making it available to a broad international audience. The series is structured to blend entertainment with educational insights, offering viewers meaningful perspectives on personal growth and professional achievement.

Hosted by Rudy Mawer

Rudy Mawer — a recognized entrepreneur and media personality — serves as both host and central figure for the series. Mawer's vision for Legacy Makers is to bring forward real stories from a wide range of guests, from well-known celebrities and professional athletes to influential business leaders and everyday entrepreneurs whose journeys demonstrate resilience and leadership.

Content and Format

The series will explore multiple seasons built around thematic focuses on different aspects of success. The first season — titled Marketing Masters — will highlight strategies and campaigns that helped notable brands and individuals rise to prominence. Later seasons are expected to delve into topics such as product innovation, investment strategies, and startup journeys.

Each episode includes in-depth interviews, practical insights, and behind-the-scenes perspectives designed to inspire viewers with actionable takeaways and real-world lessons.

Spotlight on Diverse Stories

While the show will feature high-profile guests, creators also emphasize the importance of everyday entrepreneurs and professionals. These individuals will share how they navigate challenges, pursue opportunities, and define success in their own terms — giving a diverse range of voices a platform on the global stage.

Where to Watch

Legacy Makers* will be distributed across major streaming platforms, bringing the series to audiences around the world in Summer 2025. Exact platform details and release dates for episodes are expected to be announced closer to the premiere.
